be responsible for areas normally under their direction.

FIRE PREVENTION, fire fighting, and radiological decontamination would be the responsibility of the Fire Department. The Police Department would be responsible for protection of life and property, general law enforcement, prevention of looting and vandalism, and emergency traffic control.

Other city departments would be responsible for public works. Each department would normally operate in its own area. For example, the street department would clean, repair, and maintain the city streets, while the water department would be responsible for securing a safe water supply or restoring water service. Communications, an important part of civil defense are assigned to the Police Department. A network of the city's amateur radio operators forms a part of the communications network. Radios, radio-telephones, and teletype machines are available, and portable generators are on hand. FINALLY, the Civil Defense Commission would oversee the welfare and public information operations, and advise the operations chief on priority of work.

Certain of these functions would be more important in certain types of disasters. For example, an enemy attack would necessitate full operation of all departments and services. Lesser disasters would be met with the appropriate forces.

To assist the personnel in carrying out their assignments, the city maintains cranes, generators, water trucks, tractors, lifts, and dump trucks at the city yard. Radio equipment and other communication devices are located in the city center and are fully operational. But certain areas are still weak.

THERE ARE only 432 shelters in the city with a 100 per cent protection factor, and spaces with 20 to 40 per cent protection factors for 13,400 additional persons. Work is continuing on the plan, and much remains to be done.

Lectures and workshops conducted by the city fire department on first aid are now available to 10 or more people at one time, or to service groups. The Building Department has information on home shelters, and surveys are underway to increase the number of available shelters.

However, with the current plan, the city is able to meet most emergencies with a minimum amount of interruption in city government. Medical supplies are adequate, and needed police and fire equipment is available.

Plans are being reviewed constantly, and proposals for improvement are already forthcoming. They will be the subject of the final article in this series.

Earl Campbell, the featured speaker at the annual Southern California Baptist Laymen's Conferences at Thousand Pines will address the group.

On Saturday, the third in the series of the Sacred Concerts, sponsored by the Christian Artist's Guild of Southern California, will be presented at 8 p.m.

Musicians will include The Counts, official heralders of the Tournament of Roses Parade; June Opie, vocal recording artist, and the Revelators Quartet.

Pastor H. Earl Kuester will preach on "What Do You Know for Sure?" at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. duplicate Sunday services and at the 7 p.m. Vesper Hour on "The Christian Faces the World."

(Continued from Page 1) the town?" Vico asked. "Downtown . . . old Torrance . . . is dying on the vine. Even if you change the street, people wouldn't travel it. I think it's a waste of money," he said.

MAYOR ALBERT ISEN, who admitted he had been "lukewarm" to the idea earlier, said, "the more I think of it, the better benefits I can see. We shouldn't have the defeatist attitude Mr. Vico has."

The matter was sent to the city manager with a request that views of the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Division be solicited and returned to the City Council on Oct. 15 to begin formal processing. It will be necessary to put the suggestion up to the Planning Commission, and public hearings will be needed before such a change can be formalized.
